BEFORE PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD

Seventy Fruit Growers and Farmers
Ask that Reading Railroad be Required to Establish a Station at Mount Tabor.

Before the Public Service Commission at Harrisburg on Tuesday afternoon, the request of W. S. Adams and about seventy other orchardists and farmers of Mount Tabor and vicinity, for a new freight and passenger station on the Reading railroad was heard.

The proposed station is asked at a point about one-half mile from Starners station, and a mile and a quarter from Idaville. It would be called Mount Tabor and located about a half mile from that village. Mr. Adams recently established a warehouse at this point and a direct road from Mount Tabor to the railroad would give easy access and save the farmers and fruit growers many miles, both in hauling freight and in using the station for passenger traffic.

The request was made to the Reading some time ago and refused, whereupon an appeal was taken to the Public Service Commission by John D. Keith, Esq., representing the petitioners. Olmstead and Stamm, of Harrisburg, acted as associate counsel. The Reading was represented at Tuesday's hearing by E. L. Kinter, one of their chief staff counsel, and Attorney Brady, of Harrisburg.

The railroad called Division Superintendent Stackhouse, their statistician and other men to show that there was no need for the new station. Mr. Keith called the following witnesses to show that there is such necessity, Charles C. Miller, Amos W. Griest, Timothy Day, J. J. Meals, H. J. Baker, C. A. Murtorf, H. E. Wolf, C. A. Wolf, W. S. Adams, E. W. Engst, and Charles A. Gardner.

When these witnesses had been heard it was about six o'clock and one of the commissioners asked how many more Mr. Keith had to produce.

"There are about seventy in all," he replied, "but, if the attorneys for the railroad are agreed, I can file their affidavits which I have with me, instead of hearing their testimony." This arrangement proved highly satisfactory and the hearing was closed. The decision has not been announced but it is believed that the request will be granted.

CANNOT SEE NOW

Directors would Do away with Non Contributing Fans.

The directorate of the Gettysburg base ball club has arranged to place a muslin screen along the north side of Nixon Field to obstruct the view of the assemblage of quarterless fans who witness the games daily without paying anything toward the support of the team. Argument and appeals to sportsmanship fail to affect the crowd which has been growing in numbers and the only possible method is now to be adopted. The muslin will be removed after each game.

Motorists are asked not to use the running track in getting their cars in position for viewing the game.

FEW BASS

Small Catches in County Streams on Opening Day.

Gettysburg's fishermen met with little luck on the first day of the bass season. P. W. Stallsmith, Dr. E. H. Markley, William Eden and C. K. Gilbert composed one party, the total of whose catch was nineteen. John W. Brehm and John Mickley secured six. Other fishermen report even smaller catches than these.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

Is Charged against Adams County
Hotel Man.

Information has been laid before Squire Harnish charging Vincent Bushman, proprietor of the hotel at Hampton, with furnishing liquor to a man of known intemperate habits. Mr. Bushman gave bail for his appearance at a hearing which will be held next Tuesday.

PARADE TO OPEN THE CHAUTAUQUA

New Plan for Initial Day of Annual Summer Event. All who Participate will be Given Free Entrance to the Large Tent.

A parade is to open Gettysburg's 1915 Chautauqua. This announcement is made following the visit of a representative of the Pennsylvania Chautauqua Association who took up the question with the local directors. The same plan is to be carried in other towns all over the circuit.

The proposition is to invite all the various secret, beneficial, and other orders in the town and county to participate in the demonstration, and all who appear in the column will be admitted free to the first afternoon session. The Chautauqua Association will have a movie man on the job and he will photograph the procession as it passes by. On the evening of the first day this film will be shown in the big tent.

Miss Hamilton, the representative of the Association who was here to give the preliminary instructions, told how the advertising campaign this year is to be conducted. The Association will not send out any advertising cars as in past years but will allow the managers in each town a certain appropriation for advertising purposes. The old plan proved too expensive.

A large banner has been put in place at the Centre Square corner of Baltimore street. This constitutes the advertising for the first week. Next week the county will be covered by Chautauqua boosters, and placards and posters will be liberally distributed at conspicuous places. The third week an automobile tour to the portions of the county, from which Gettysburg draws the largest crowds, will take the descriptive booklets advertising Chautauqua attractions.

The newspapers will be generally used to advise the people of the town and county of the various attractions and their merits, so that the advertising will be done as extensively and with as much system as in other years.

The program for the sessions from July 16 to 22 promises a week of keen enjoyment and the number of tickets sold promises to equal, if not to surpass, those of other years.

CHURCH STRUCK

Steeple Attracts Electric Bolt during Storm of Rain.

Trinity Lutheran church at East Berlin was struck by lightning Tuesday afternoon during the electrical storm which passed over that portion of the county. Some slate was ripped from the steeple and the framework was damaged. The interior of the building escaped injury.

The stroke came during a heavy downpour of rain and in addition to the damage to the tower tore out several bricks and did other minor damage about the building.

East Berlin and vicinity were visited by one of the heaviest rains of the season during the storm and rain fell in torrents. Lightning did not do any other damage than that at the church.

READY FOR HIM

COUNCIL DEFERS ACTION ON GUIDES

Will Try to Effect Some Agreement with National Park Commission before Passing New Ordinance.
Meeting is Called off.

The ordinance committee of the town council was due to report at an adjourned meeting this evening on a new law to govern the battlefield guides and garage runners. The committee announces that it will not be ready to present the necessary ordinance and as a result the meeting will not be held.

Indications now point to a mutual agreement between the town council and the National Park Commission on the matter of regulating the guides. In years past this has been frequently suggested but no successful consummation was ever reached.

By the new requirements, soon to become effective, which will necessitate the taking out of licenses from the commission, the guides will be under some control so far as their work on the field is concerned. Council hopes to pass a reasonable order which will govern their conduct in the town. The suggestion now favored is that the commission and council agree that the forfeiting of the one license will automatically cause the forfeiture of the other, so that no guide could continue in business who was not approved by both bodies.

The committee of council will ask an audience with the National Park Commission in the near future, and will then present the attitude of the borough in the matter. The commission has shown a desire to do its share in the matter and it is believed likely that some satisfactory agreement will be reached.

MANY HERE FOR TEACHERS' TESTS

Those who will Have Charge of County Schools are Examined by Superintendent Roth. Others to Appear Next Week.

Sixty nine young ladies and gentlemen, who hope to teach in the public schools of Adams County, met in Gettysburg to-day to undergo the annual test given by County Superintendent Roth to those who seek provisional certificates which qualify them for one year's work.

In the number were some who have taught in other years and many who have been attending one or other of the county schools. Those applicants who are attending school elsewhere will be examined in similar fashion next week. There are a number of coming Adams County teachers now taking courses at one or other of the State normal schools.

The majority of those taking to-day's tests were young ladies, the number of male applicants being considerably smaller than the women who expect to take up teaching as a profession. All of the branches in which the prospective teachers are usually examined were given the applicants to-day and the test was a thorough one.

The examinations this morning were held in the assembly room of the Gettysburg High School and were conducted by County Superintendent Roth. The work was started during the morning and the last ones to finish did not submit their papers until well on toward the middle of the afternoon.

DEATH RUMOR FALSE

Hurries to Home of his Sister and Finds her Perfectly Well.

Hearing that his sister, Mrs. William Pascoe, residing in McSherrystown, had died, Harry Sterner, son of Jacob Sterner, of Hanover Junction, made a flying trip to that place on a bicycle.

Mr. Sterner received word late at night from his brother in York that his sister was dead and his brother asked when the funeral would be held. Mr. Sterner telephoned to a hotel at McSherrystown, but was unable to ascertain whether the report was true.

He then procured a bicycle and left in the morning at 5 o'clock and upon reaching McSherrystown found that the report was unfounded. Evidently it was due to the death of another woman, which occurred in McSherrystown.

One of his legs, it is said, was nearly severed by the blade of the scythe. He suffered great loss of blood. Dr. E. A. Miller, East Berlin, and Dr. T. C. Miller, Abbottstown, were summoned and rendered surgical aid. The wound required twenty stitches.

LEHIGH CEMENT Makes Your Farm Expense-Proof

Dad, I'm Going to Stay—

"I decided last night to stay on the farm. I've given up that city notion. Here is a sure future—a good land, healthy stock and living, money-saving, fireproof CONCRETE buildings. I've got one suggestion, Dad. Let's lay a concrete driveway from the buggy barn to the house. It'll save lots of work and expensive repairs. Let's use the same cement you selected for the buildings—Lehigh Cement."

Thousands of farmers, in every section of the country, have awakened to the economical value of concrete in farm building construction. They recognize the fact that an "expense-proof" farm, with its apparent future of independence and wealth, far offsets the attractions of city life to the younger generation. Be sure to select Lehigh Cement. Uniform qualities of strength, beauty and color—country-wide distribution made possible by 12 great mills—are reasons which make Lehigh the choice of careful builders, all over, who seek the best results in concrete work. Tear down these wooden structures that need constant repair that are in daily peril of fire. Replace them with Lehigh Cement Concrete buildings. Ask the Lehigh Dealer. Discuss our plans with him; he will give you valuable co-operation in either building or remodeling.

WORKING TO ADVANCE PEACE

Mr. Wilson Denies U. S. Declined to Assist.

FINCHES FAVOR IN BERLIN

The Impression is Growing That Germany Would Welcome a Movement For Peace From a Neutral Power.

Washington, June 16.—Reports that the United States had declined to become a party to efforts in various neutral countries to make peace in Europe were said by President Wilson to be untrue.

The president said the Washington government had done everything that legitimately could be done to encourage any movement that might lead to peace or an accommodation of interests in Europe.

The president said Colonel House, who recently investigated peace prospects in Europe, had not been sent for by him, but he expected to see the colonel soon. At present Colonel House is visiting a daughter in Massachusetts.

The impression is growing in Washington that Germany is disposed to look with favor on a tangible movement for peace from one or another of the neutral powers.

The attitude of the more moderate of the German newspapers toward the latest Wilson note, the sending of Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard to Berlin as the special envoy of Ambassador von Bernstorff, the constant springing up of peace suggestions in various quarters in reports which "Berlin hears" from outside, all point to a movement believed by some officials to have its source in Germany looking to the time when peace may be more openly discussed among the powers now at war.

It is believed that German officials are pleased with President Wilson's latest note because they think it affords opportunity for further discussion, in the course of which other principles involved in the maritime war with Great Britain may be linked with the submarine issue raised by the United States.

All information in official quarters tends to indicate that a positive yes or no answer to the president's demands is hardly to be expected from Berlin. According to this, it has always been the intention of the German government to make the discussion with the United States the vehicle for conveying to the world her propaganda for changing the rules of maritime warfare in such a way as to decrease the value of a sea power such as Great Britain is now exercising.

President Wilson was asked just what the chances were to which William Jennings Bryan referred as having been made in the note to Germany after his resignation as secretary of state had been accepted, but the president felt it was best for him not to discuss the resignation or other questions connected with it.

Bryan Promises Three Articles.

Washington, June 16.—Former Secretary Bryan did not issue his promised statement on "The Causeless War" and its lessons for us, but announced that he was preparing it in three parts.

"Today," said Mr. Bryan, in a formal announcement, "I shall submit the first part, dealing with the war as it is and the injury it does to neutral nations. Tomorrow I shall consider the origin of the war and the influences which caused it. The third and concluding section will treat of the means which may be employed to restore permanent peace."

$1,250,000,000 FOR WAR

Conflict Will Cost Britain About 15,000,000 Daily For Three Months. London, June 16.—The house of commons voted another credit of $1,250,000,000, making with previous sums a total of $4,310,000,000 already allowed for war purposes.

In introducing the measure, Premier Asquith remarked that from April 1 to June 12 the expenditure had been at the rate of $13,300,000 daily. He estimated that the total daily expenditure during the currency of the credit would be not less than $15,000,000 for the reason that, as the war extended its area, Great Britain's financial obligations to the allies would increase.

Colored Slayer Lynched.

She seized an oar he had been using and helped to row out of the danger zone. She is sixteen years old.

KARLSRUHE SHELLED BY HOSTILE AIRMEN

Several Killed in Bombardment of Baden's Capital.

Karlsruhe, Baden, June 16.—Five hostile airmen bombarded Karlsruhe for forty-five minutes.

Several persons were killed or wounded. A number of places suffered material damage, but the destruction wrought has no military importance.

Eleven Persons Were Killed.

Berlin, June 16.—The German war office gave out the following: "The open town of Karlsruhe, which is far from the theater of operations and not in any way fortified, was attacked with bombs dropped by hostile airmen. So far as is now known some eleven citizens were killed and six injured. Military damage could not have been caused."

"One aircraft of the enemy was brought down by one of our military airmen and the occupants were killed. Another enemy aircraft was obliged to land near Schirneck."

TEUTONS WIN IN GALICIA

Take Important Town Between Przemyśl and Lemberg.

Berlin, June 16.—Official announcement was made at army headquarters that the Austro-German forces operating in Galicia had captured the town of Moszciska.

The official statement reads: "East of Shavil German troops have stormed the village of Dankisz and taken 1600 prisoners. The positions recently won southeast and east of the Marlamopol-Kovno road were repeatedly attacked by a strong force of the enemy, which had no success. Our troops advanced on the Lipowa-Kalwarya front, pressed back the Russian line and captured the Russian advanced trenches."

"On the river Orzyc our attacking troops stormed and took the village of Gedorowicz, southeast of Chorzetzen and Czernonagora and also the bridges there, as well as the bridges east of this place."

"The booty taken at this place amounts to 365 Russian prisoners. Attacks by the enemy against the point at which we broke through north of Bolimow failed."

"The Russian forces south of the Przemyśl-Lemberg railway have been forced to retreat. The troops of General von Der Marwitz took Moszciska. The right wing of the army of General von Linsingen stormed the heights east of Zekel. Our cavalry reached the district south of Marlamopol."

British Naval Loss 13,547.

London, June 16.—Premier Asquith announced in the house of commons that the British naval casualties to May 31 were 13,547. Of the total 8245 were killed. Land casualties up to May 31 have been given as 258,069. The total is 271,616.

Price of Flour Cut Ten Cents. New York, June 16.—A further cut of from 10 to 20 cents in the prices of flour was made here. Good spring patents were quoted at $6.50 a barrel, that figure being $1.50 under the high mark of the season.

FRENCH TAKE THE 'LABYRINTH'

Capture Two-Thirds of German Fortified Position.

BIG FORCES IN THE FIGHT

War Office Declares They Have Had Uninterrupted Success For More Than a Month.

Paris, June 16.—Two-thirds of the important fortified German position southeast of Neuville St. Vaast (north of Arras), known as "the Labyrinth," is now in possession of the French, according to a supplemental statement issued by the war office. It follows:

"The German official statements of June 12 and 13 call for the following observations:

"No German counter attacks succeeded, either at the 'Labyrinth,' of which we now hold two-thirds, or near Hebuterne (south of Arras), or at Quennevillers Farm."

"Certain French attacks exist only in the German imagination, such as the night attack among the Dunes on the night of June 11-12. Patrols from the Zouaves had taken an observation post from the enemy, and on the following night the Germans kept firing rockets and letting off volleys of infantry fire without any motive whatsoever."

"This showed their extreme nervousness from the commanders down. Our attacks have continued to make progress around Souchez (north of Arras), in the neighborhood of 'the Labyrinth' and near Hebuterne. The only indication of our success contained in the German statements is the stereotyped expression, 'the fighting continues.'"

"It is important to make clear that for more than a month we have had uninterrupted success north and south of Arras and between the Aisne and Oise rivers. All our attacks succeeded brilliantly. It has not been a case of guerrilla warfare, as the German press states, but attacks extending over a wide front and involving brigades and divisions. As many as 2000 or 3000 Germans have been killed in a single day's fighting."

"At Lunerville a German airman, upon being chased by two French aviators, threw five bombs at random, which caused neither damage nor casualties. These useless, ill-directed attacks are designed to offset our successful air raids."

SLOW WORK ON GALLIPOLI

London Reports Situation Favors Allies, But Progress Made Is Slow.

London, June 16.—The following announcement concerning the operations at the Dardanelles was given out officially here:

"The situation on the Gallipoli peninsula has developed into trench warfare. After our success on the 4th instant the Turks have evinced a great respect for our offensive, and by day and night they have to submit to captures of trenches. "On the night of the 11th-12th of June two regiments of a British regular brigade made a simultaneous attack on the advanced Turkish trenches, and after severe fighting, which included the killing of many snipers, succeeded in maintaining themselves in spite of bombs, in the captured position."

"On the morning of the 13th a counter attack was made by the Turks, who rushed forward with bombs, but coming under the fire of the naval machine gun squadron were annihilated. Of the fifty who attacked, thirty dead bodies were counted in front of that part of our trenches. "The situation is favorable to our troops, but is necessarily slow on account of the difficulties of the ground. The Turkish offensive has sensibly weakened."

SHOOTS PARENTS AND SELF

Wilkes-Barre Man Found Unconscious in Woods After Double Crime.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 16.—Max Karulis, of Wanamie, near here, who shot his parents at their home and then escaped to the mountains, was found by a posse of citizens, alive, but unconscious, with a bullet wound in his neck, at a place about five miles from the southern end of the town.

Karulis had attempted suicide, say the police. A revolver, with one of the chambers empty, was found near him.

Karulis, who is about twenty-four years old, shot his mother in the abdomen and his father in the right arm. The mother was shot first and the father when he rushed at his son to disarm him.

At the Nanticoke State hospital, where the three were taken, little hope is held out for the recovery of the mother and son.

No Extra Session of Congress. Washington, June 16.—President Wilson has no present plan to call congress in extra session, he indicated in a talk with Senator Ashurst, of Arizona. It appears likely that congress would be called only if the international complications force war on the United States.

Economy of fuel consumption in steamships often requires the mixing of two or more kinds of coal and an Englishman has invented a coaling barge that mixes coal as it delivers it into a bunker.

CHICAGO JUDGE SAYS RUN CARS

Orders Elevated Road to Report Interference.

Chicago, June 16.—Judge Kohlsaat, in the United States district court, ordered the receiver for the Chicago & Oak Park Elevated railroads to resume service and to employ strike breakers and report any interference with operations to the court.

The presidents of the two traction companies, after a conference, rejected the offer of mediation made by the state board of arbitration, upon the ground that several "fair" offers for this method of settlement had been refused by the unions.

The second day of the Chicago strike saw attempts to increase service on the elevated lines meet with several acts of violence.

An acid bomb was thrown from a building at Wells and West Kinzie streets. It broke a window of an elevated train, but did no other damage.

One South Side train was made the target of a big plank thrown from a fire escape, and in another a window was smashed by a brick thrown from a roof.

A small but apparently increasing number of passengers were carried over the fourteen miles of elevated routes from the North to the South Sides. No attempt to run surface cars was made.

Big signs advising of the destination and charge for rides were posted on motor buses, ice wagons, motor driven coal wagons, furniture trucks and thousands of jitneys, which did a rushing business.

The standard price for being carried two miles or more was 10 cents, if one stood. Where improvised seats were provided 15 and 25 cents was charged.

According to dispatches received in Innsbruck the Socialists are reported to have said that Belgium must be independent again, no matter how the war results.

WILLIAM KAISER 27 YEARS

Germany Quietly Observes Anniversary of Emperor's Accession.

Berlin, June 16.—The twenty-seventh anniversary of the accession of William II. was quietly observed throughout Germany yesterday.

In view of the great demand made by the war upon the energies of the people, no attempt was made to signalize the event with brilliant function, as in former years, especially on the occasion of the silver anniversary two years ago.

The emperor passed the day on the eastern front, which also is holding the interest of the entire nation. Numerous telegrams of felicitation, expressing confidence in the outcome of the great struggle were forwarded to his majesty.

LITTLE DOING IN THE BLUE RIDGE

Rain Interferes with All except One of the Games Scheduled for Tuesday. Lower Pitches Perfect Ball for Four Innings.

With every batter an easy out, Hagerstown showed no form against the Patriots Tuesday afternoon but the game was called in the fourth inning on account of rain and Gettysburg lost a chance to break that fifth place tie and climb a little higher. Rain also caused a postponement of the Hanover-Frederick game, but Martinsburg and Chambersburg played, the former winning 6 to 0.

Lower was on the mound for Gettysburg and though the Hagerstown batters hit him, they sent the ball straight to the fielders' hands and not a hit or an error was registered against the Patriots.

On the other hand, Plank's charge went right after the game from the start. Kane hit the first ball pitcher for two bases but could get no farther. Bream got to second in the next inning on a safety and a stolen base and Williams got to second in the third on a two bagger. Everything looked for a victory for the Gettysburg boys but rain interfered.

The attendance inside the field was 150, outside 75. Scarcely encouraging to the local management.

FOR BETTER FORESTS

92,000 Trees Planted in Mont Alto Section.

The State Forest Academy instructors and their assistants in the institution at Mont Alto planted almost 100,000 trees the past spring.

The species and total number of each planted are as follows: white pine, 48,700; Norway spruce, 29,000; red pine, 10,000; Scotch pine, 1,700; wild black cherry, 200; honey locust, 700; red oak, 1,900.

For several years all the open areas upon the Mont Alto state forest have been planted to trees. As a consequence the operations for the past two years have been confined mostly to recently burnt-over areas, and those covered with inferior species such as scrub oak, black gum, sassafras, aspen, etc.

About 278 species of trees and shrubs are native to Pennsylvania. 156 to Franklin county, and 144 to the region about Mont Alto. A large percentage of the latter are found within a ten-minute's walk from the Pennsylvania State Forest Academy located at the western border of the Mont Alto state forest.

"Amphibious."

Speaking of fish stories, one cannot help being reminded of the occasion when a committeeman was examining a class of boys in the South. "Can any of you," he asked, "tell me what 'amphibious' means, and give a sentence to illustrate?" A bright little darky held up his hand. "I know, sah! It's lying! Mos' fish stories 'am fibrous!"—W. B. Allen in Scribner's Magazine.

Natural Result of Cross.

One-day Luther Burbank was walking in his garden, when he was accosted by an officious acquaintance, who said: "Well, what are you working on now?" "Trying to cross an eggplant and milkweed," said Mr. Burbank. "And what under heaven do you expect to get from that?" Mr. Burbank calmly resumed his walk. "Custard pie," he said.

BIG MEN CALL ON TO ESTABLISH

Mr. Taft Writes Special Article Showing How War Can Be Made Virtually Impossible.

ON the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill, June 17, a conference will be held in Independence hall, Philadelphia, to consider proposals for a league of peace and decide upon steps to be taken to obtain the support of public opinion and of governments. Ex-President Taft will preside and the speakers will be of international eminence. Four articles will be presented as a basis for a tentative platform.

The conference is called by a national provisional committee of 113 members, which includes the names of former President Taft, former Secretary of War Dickinson, former Secretary of the Navy Metcalf, Oscar S. Straus, and Judge George Gray, members of The Hague court; Theodore Marburg, former minister to Belgium; President Lowell of Harvard; President Hibben of Princeton; Cardinal Gibbons, Senator Williams of Mississippi; William Allen White, editor of the Emporia Gazette; Andrew D. White, former ambassador to Germany; President Wheeler of the University of California; President Alderman of the University of Virginia; John Mitchell and three eminent international lawyers, Professor Woolsey of Yale, Professor Wilson of Harvard and Professor Moore of Columbia.

Writing in the Independent on the proposed plan for the enforcement of perpetual peace, ex-President Taft says:

"To constitute an effective League of Peace we do not need all the nations. Such an agreement between eight or nine of the great powers of Europe, Asia and America would furnish a useful restraint upon possible wars.

Others Would Follow.

"The successful establishment of a league between the great powers would draw into it very quickly the less powerful nations.

"What should be the fundamental plan of the league?"

"It seems to me that it ought to contain four provisions. In the first place, it ought to provide for the formation of a court, which would be given jurisdiction by the consent of all the members of the league to consider and decide justiciable questions between them or any of them which have not yielded to negotiation according to the principles of international law and equity and that the court should be vested with power upon the application of any member of the league to decide the issue as to whether the question arising is justiciable.

"Second—A commission of conciliation for the consideration and recommendation of a solution of all nonjusticiable questions that may arise between the members of the league should be created, and this commission should have power to hear evidence, investigate the causes of differences and mediate between the parties and then make its recommendation for a settlement.

"Third—Conferences should be held from time to time to agree upon principles of international law not already established as their necessity shall suggest themselves. When the conclusions of the commission shall have been submitted to the various parties to the league for a reasonable time, say a year, without calling forth objection it shall be deemed that they acquiesce in the principles thus declared.

"Fourth—The members of the league shall agree that if any member of the league shall begin war against any other member of the league without first having submitted the question if found justiciable to the arbitral court provided in the fundamental compact, or without having submitted the question if found nonjusticiable to the commission of conciliation for its examination, consideration and recommendation, then the remaining members of the league agree to join in the forcible defense of the member thus prematurely attacked.

Principle in His Treaties.

"First—The first feature involves the principle of the general arbitration treaties with England and France, to which England and France agreed, and which I submitted to the senate, and which the senate rejected or so mutilated as to destroy their vital principle. I think it is of the utmost importance that it should be embraced in any effective league of peace. The successful operation of the supreme court as a tribunal between independent states in deciding justiciable questions not in the control of congress, or under the legislative regulation of either state, furnishes a precedent and justification for this that I hope I have made clear. Moreover, the inveterate practice of arbitration which has now grown to be an established custom for the disposition of controversial questions between Canada and the United States is another confirmation of the practical character of such a court.

"Second—We must recognize, however, that the questions within the jurisdiction of such a court would certainly not include all the questions that might lead to war, and therefore we should provide some other instrumentality for helping the solution of those questions which are nonjusticiable. This might be a commission of conciliation, a commission to investigate the facts, to consider the arguments on both sides, to mediate between the parties, to see if some compromise cannot be effected and finally to formulate and recommend a settlement. This may involve time, but the delay, instead of being an objection, is really one of the valuable incidents providing for the performance of such a function by a commission. We have an example of such a commission of conciliation in the controversy between the United States and Great Britain over the seal fisheries. The case on its merits as a judicial question was decided against the United States, but the world importance of not destroying the Prillof seal herd by pelagic sealing was recognized, and a compromise was formulated by the arbitral tribunal, which was ultimately embodied in a treaty between England, Russia, Japan and the United States. Similar recommendations were made by the court of arbitration which considered the issues arising between the United States and Great Britain in respect to the Newfoundland fisheries.

WORLD POWERS LEAGUE OF PEACE

Would Have Conferences.

"Third—Periodical conferences should be held between the members of the league for the declaration of principles of international law. This is really a provision for something in the nature of legislative action by the nations concerned in respect to international law. The principles of international law are based upon custom between nations established by actual practice, by their recognition in treaties and by the consensus of great law writers. Undoubtedly the function of an arbitral court established as proposed in the first of the above suggestions would lead to a good deal of valuable judge-made international law. But that would not cover the whole field, and something in the nature of legislation on the subject would be a valuable supplement to existing international law. It would be one of the very admirable results of such a league of peace that the scope of international law could be enlarged in this way. Justice Holmes, in the case of Missouri versus Illinois, points out that the supreme court in passing on questions between the states and in laying down the principles of international law that ought to govern in controversies between them should not and cannot make itself a legislature. But in a league of peace there is no limit to the power of international conferences of the members in such a quasi-legislative course except the limit of the wise and the practical.

Benefit to America.

"Fourth—The fourth suggestion is one that brings in the idea of force. In the league proposed all members are to agree that if any one member violates its obligation and begins war against any other member without submitting its cause for war to the arbitral court, if it is a justiciable question, or to the commission of conciliation if it is otherwise, all the members of the league should unite to defend the member attacked against a war waged in breach of plighted faith. It is to be observed that this does not involve the members of the league in an obligation to enforce the judgment of the court or the recommendation of the commission of conciliation. It only furnishes the instrumentality of force to prevent attack without submission. It is believed it is more practical than to attempt to enforce judgments after the hearing.

"One reason is that the failure to submit to one of the two tribunals the threatening cause of war for the consideration of one or the other is a fact easily ascertained and concerning which there can be no dispute, and it is a palpable violation of the obligation of the member. It is wiser not to attempt too much. The required submission and the delay incident thereto will in most cases lead to acquiescence in the judgment of the court or in the recommendation of the commission of conciliation. The threat of force against plainly unjust war, for that is what is involved in the provision, will have a most salutary deterrent effect. I am aware that membership in this league would involve on the part of the United States an obligation to take part in European and Asiatic wars, it may be, and that in this respect it would be a departure from the traditional policy of the United States in avoiding entangling alliances with European or Asiatic countries. But I conceive that the interest of the United States in the close relations it has of a business and social character with the other countries of the world, much closer now than ever before, would justify it if such a league could be formed, in running the risk that there might be of such a war in making more probable the securing of the inestimable boon of peace of the world that now seems so far away."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Hall Bonistelle, artist-photographer, preparing for the day's work in his studio, is reminded by Flodie Fisher, his assistant, of a party he is to give in the studio that night and warned that his business is in bad financial shape.

CHAPTER II—Mr. Doremus, attorney, and justice of the peace, calls and informs Hall that his Uncle John's will has left him $4,000 on condition that he marry before his twenty-eighth birthday, which begins at midnight that night.

CHAPTER III—Mrs. Zona Royaton calls at the studio and Hall asks her to marry him at once. She spurs for time, but finally agrees to give him an answer at the party that night.

CHAPTER IV—Miss Carolyn Deane calls and Hall proposes to her. She agrees to give him an answer at the party.

CHAPTER V—Rosamund Gela, who is a model, calls. Hall tries to rush her into an immediate marriage, but she, too, defers her answer until the evening. Flodie says Hall has ordered trouble delivered at the house.

CHAPTER VI—Flodie tries to show Hall a certain way out of the mixup, but he is obtuse. Jonas Hassingbury, heir to the millions in case Hall fails to marry on time, plots with Flodie to block Hall's marriage to any of the three women before midnight.

CHAPTER VII—Flodie arranges to have Hall's three intendeds meet at the studio as if by chance. Carolyn and Rosamund come in first and compare notes. They think Hall is perhaps going crazy.

CHAPTER VIII—Mrs. Royaton comes in and much feminine fencing ensues, in which Flodie uses her own foil adroitly.

CHAPTER IX—Hall comes in and the ladies retire for conference. Hall is worried lest they confide in each other, but Flodie sarcastically reassures him. Alfred, the janitor, brings in a newspaper with the story of the queer legacy. The ladies' alliance to humiliate Hall dissolves and they retire to plan war for the $4,000 prize.

CHAPTER X—Successive telephone messages from the three ladies inform Hall that he is accepted by all three. Desperate, he asks Flodie to save him from the three-horned dilemma by marrying him. She refuses, and goes with Alfred, who has long been an humble suitor, to get a marriage license.

CHAPTER XI.

Flodie's mind having been, in the afternoon, thus somewhat diverted from preparations for the party, the decorations of the studio had devolved on the untutored taste of Alfred Smallish. Poor Alfred! Flodie, arriving early, spent nearly an hour reconstructing his decorative scheme, putting and pulling it into something more careless, and more agreeable to her own sense of beauty.

For the occasion Mr. Smallish had also decorated himself. In his hired evening suit he looked, if possible, a bit more pathetic than usual.

Flodie had arrayed herself for the evening with simplicity and artful grace. She wore white mulle, which, happily escaping the schoolgirl touch, daintily showed her neck to admirable advantage. Flodie's hair disclosed, perhaps, more of her attentive care. She had caught that charm of careless luxuriance for which clever women strive. Hall Bonistelle's first glance told her that she had succeeded. She answered his exclamatory compliments with a shrug.

"You wait!" he announced, shaking his finger at her, "just as soon as I have it out with those three women I'm coming after you! Remember that! I've got to get rid of them some way, Lord knows how, but I'll do it! And then, Flodie Fisher, it'll be your turn! Mark my words! I intend to marry you up before midnight!"

"You won't!" she exclaimed, and slammed the door in his face. When she came out, a few minutes later, she found him in the studio, frowning.

"Confound it!" he said, "I'm all up a tree without my watch! I've got to keep track of the time tonight, though; it's important. I want to know how long I've got."

"There's the clock," said Flodie, "can't you look at that occasionally?" "I wonder how near right it is?" he asked. "It's been losing time lately, hasn't it?"

"Shall I ring up Central and ask?" "Will you, please? Thanks!" Hall walked to the tall grandfather's clock in the corner and opened the door, while Flodie went into the office.

After a moment, she called out, "Ten twenty-two, Mr. Bonistelle!"

"Lord, it is awfully slow, isn't it! All right!" Hall put the minute hand a half-hour ahead and shut the door. Then he went up to Flodie impulsively. "Flo, for God's sake, say yes. That will settle everything. Won't you, Flodie, dear?"

She answered with sarcasm. "Partner wanted for a well-established business. Must have four millions capital. Answer immediately. No, I won't! There!"

Hall, thus discomfited, tried a new line. "You haven't asked to see the ring yet!" he said, smiling.

"No, and I don't want to!" Flodie was cool, very.

He took a box from his pocket, opened the lid and set it down temptingly in front of her. Flodie could not resist one look at the ruby, then returned it to him without a word.

"See if it fits, Flo!" he said, coaxingly.

"I can't tell," she said; "Rosamund's hands are rather—well, they're not exactly small, are they?"

"You'll be wearing this ring before midnight, Miss Fisher!" He put it back into its case, adding, "I'm going to use an old ring of my mother's for the wedding. It'll come pretty soon after the other, though. It won't be a long engagement."

At the rattle of the elevator door in the hall outside Alfred Smallish sprang to the door of the office and opened it ceremoniously.

"Lord, there's the specter at the feast!" said Hall under his breath.

It was Jonas Hassingbury, dressed in a long black frock coat, not unlike an undertaker, with his black gloves and string tie. His long face kept up the illusion; it was dark and solemn, befitting a serious occasion. He bowed low to Flodie and held out a thin hand to his host.

Hall's reception of him was polite without being over-cordial. The two cousins did not often meet; they had little in common, and they disliked each other thoroughly.

"Well, Jonas, been having a good time in New York?"

"Oh, well, so-so." His eyes twinkled. "Not so good as I expect to have a little later, though." He winked elaborately at Flodie.

"Oh, I see. Meaning that money, I presume."

"That's right! Can't blame me for takin' an interest in it, can ye? Four millions don't walk into my pocket every night, my boy!" He slapped Hall cordially on the shoulder.

Hall was angry. "You seem to be pretty sure of it!"

Jonas placidly shook his head in sorrow at this exhibition of temper. "Now, Hall, ye want to take this in a Christian spirit, my boy. I can see it'll be all for the best. Remember that gold is but dross."

"No, You Haven't Asked Me!"

Hall whirled on him. "Shut up, will you? By jove, if you weren't in my own house, I'd kick you down stairs!" And with that, he flung impetuously out of the room.

Jonas' sour glance followed him. "Peevish, ain't he? How be ye gettin' along?" he asked anxiously, in an undertone, of Flodie. "Anything happened?"

"Well, I should say!" said Flodie. "You ought to have seen the show. But we're not out of the woods, yet. Still, I think that if I have time and luck, I can put it through."

"Ye can? By whilkens, that's fine! Good for you! Well, we ought to know pretty soon now." He looked up at the clock. "Only, let's see—an hour and thirty—" He stopped, staring at the clock, then, with a puzzled face, drew his own big watch from his pocket, and compared it with the clock. "Say!" He turned eagerly to Flodie.

"Hush!" cried Flodie, and laid her finger on her lip.

Jonas' expression grew crafty. Then he grinned. "Oh, I see! Got a little scheme fixed up, eh?" He walked to the couch and sat down, beckoning her. "Say, jest set down, won't ye, and let me know how things stand."

Flodie demurely took a seat beside him.

"Then they ain't no danger of any of them three women gittin' him, is they?"

"Why," said Flodie, "not if we can manage to keep them away from him. It isn't so easy as it looks. Those women are getting desperate, now, and you've got to help me fool them."

"Me? How? What can I do?"

"Why, if one of them gets him, you've got to just jump in, and break it up in a hurry. Don't let her get a word in edgewise, if you can help it. Fall on the floor, smash a window—anything! It doesn't matter what they think."

"By jiminy, I'll do it, you bet!" cried Jonas. "One thing I do know: How to handle women!"

"There's millions in it, Mr. Hassingbury!"

"And I'm the feller what's goin' to get 'em!" He seized Flodie's hand before she could protest, and shook it energetically. "Say, miss, you're a little wonder! Think of your doin' all that just on my account—you're a friend worth havin', d'you know it?"

"It was nice of me, wasn't it?" Flodie replied modestly, turning away to bite her lip.

Jonas hitched his chair closer. "Why, I been a-thinkin' of it over to-day, and I got a proposition I've decided to make to ye. If I git this here money, and I hope now like I should what d'ye say to we two hitchin' up together?"

Flodie jumped up suddenly. "Now, hold on, miss!" Jonas exclaimed, and stretched forth his long arm in exhortation. "You hear me out first. I've kind of took a notion to ye, and I'm willin' to try it, if you be. I don't see where I could do better, and you'd git a good man if you got me, miss, if I do say it!"

"Thank you kindly," said Flodie,

"but I don't really know what in the world I'd do with you if I got you."

Jonas stared at her as if she were raving. "You don't know what you're talkin' about! Don't you realize if you marry me you'll get four million dollars? Lord, any other gal would just jump at the chance to have the spendin' o' that money."

"Let 'em jump!" said Flodie. "That's my advice, Mr. Hassingbury; you take a good jumper. And I want to give you a tip—" She went up to him and took him confidentially by the lapel of his coat. "There'll be three women here tonight, and all of 'em can jump like grasshoppers. Once they find out you have money, and they'll jump at the chance, you see! They'll jump all over you!"

Before the astonished Jonas could reply, Alfred opened the door to a lady gorgeously arrayed in blue. Flodie gave one look at her, then whispered: "There's the first one of 'em now! Miss Gale." Then she stepped forward, sniffing fragrant scornfully, and welcomed Rosamund.

An elaborate, painstaking picture of feminine frippery was Rosamund Gale. She came in as if making a stage entrance. Something was to happen tonight. Rosamund was on the war-path.

She barely acknowledged Flodie's greeting, or Jonas' presence, but cast a hasty anxious glance about; then, seeing no women, seemed to breathe freer. "Where's Hall?" she asked almost immediately.

"Oh, somewhere about. In with the musicians probably." Flodie turned to Jonas. "Mr. Hassingbury, Miss Gale!" Jonas bent over her. "Why, now, they's a lot o' Gales down to Branford, where I live. I wonder if you—"

"Tell Hall to hurry please!" cried Rosamund to Flodie. Flodie started off, smiling, but Rosamund caught at her arm and held her. "Wait a minute, though! Miss Fisher, listen! Has anything—anything important happened?"

"What d'you mean?"

"Oh, I mean—well, nothing exciting, has it?"

Flodie reflected. "Why, I'm afraid Alfred has spilled some salad on his new dress suit, Miss Gale, if that's what you mean."

Rosamund did not condescend to answer. She left haughtily and passed hurriedly into the dressing room and divested herself of her wraps. Jonas had but time to remark to Flodie, "So she's one of 'em, is she? Pretty gal, by jiminy!" when she was out again, and without noticing them, had gone to the door of the reception room, and looked in, scowling.

Here, the rugs were all up and the floor waxed for dancing. Three musicians were scraping and tuning their instruments. Hall Bonistelle was in a corner, arranging a vase of flowers. Rosamund darted in and swam up to him. No screw now; she was a different creature, smiling, radiant, angelic, sailing on an air of gladness. She seized Hall's hand excitedly.

"Oh, Hall," she exclaimed dramatically, "man's perfectly delighted! It's all right, and you needn't worry a moment longer! Aren't you glad?" She hung on him fondly as if she expected him to embrace her.

Hall had turned white. Rosamund's beauty had instantly disarmed him. He could no more have said the brutal things he had contemplated than he could have struck a child. Weakly, he procrustinated, fumbling her hand. "Really?" he managed to say. "Jove! That's fine!"

"Well, why don't you kiss me, Hall?" Rosamund's eyes were on the door, watching anxiously for interruptions. Flodie gazed in.

Hall looked over his shoulder, embarrassed. "Oh, these musicians—I don't want them to—say, wait till we can be alone!"

She stared at him in annoyed surprise, then gave another irritated glance at the door. The sound of women's voices goaded her on. "Nonsense! Why, I intend to announce our engagement immediately."

Terror-stricken, Hall exclaimed, "Oh, no, that won't do at all, Rosamund, really. We'll have to wait a little while—not tonight, anyway!"

"Why, that's half the fun of being engaged—talking about it!" Then after another quick look toward the office, she gazed up at him and pressed his hand. "We are engaged, aren't we, Hall?"

"Oh, yes—certainly! Only—"

Rosamund had an instant of triumph and relief. It was all right, then. She tossed her head as if in secret revolt; she would have her own way, see if she didn't! "Well," she said coldly, "I'll wait a while, if you insist. Only, I should think you might look happier about it. You act so funny!"

He was saved from having to reply by Jonas Hassingbury, who, glimpsing the encounter, and impelled by Flodie, had plunged boldly forward to the rescue.

"Say," he began pointblank to Rosamund, "be you any relation to Abijah Gale? I believe his mother was a Nettleton."

Rosamund glared, and Hall, seizing the happy chance, had already begun to edge off, with a mumbled something about duties and guests. People had, in truth, begun to arrive and the place was filling rapidly. The musicians had begun to play; Flodie looked in, with a distressed face, and beckoned. Still Rosamund held him by the sleeve.

Jonas fired again. "Ain't never been down Branford way, have ye? Say you ought to run down to our village some time, miss, and git a mess o' chams. We got some first-class lobsters down home. Know it?"

Rosamund turned the full glory of her gaze upon him. "Oh, yes," she said sweetly, "I can easily believe that!"

But alas for her irony! This indulgence had cost her her prey. Hall was already across the room, and Jonas clung like a leech. She could not, with all her insolence, detach him.

PRZEMYSL FAMED IN STORY OF WAR

Thrice It Has Been Besieged, Twice It Has Fallen.

GREAT AUSTRIAN VICTORY.

Russians, Who Held Powerful Galician Fortress Seventy Days, Fled Before Mail of Shells From Big Austro-German Guns to Which They Lacked Ammunition to Reply.

Three separate sieges of Przemyśl, or Peremysh, as the Russians named it during their brief occupation, has made the great Galician fortress one of the memorable centers of the war. Nor probably is its story yet concluded.

It was early in the war's history that the Russian forces, with little of resistance before them, first swept across the Galician plains and planted their heavy guns before the stronghold. The first shots were fired on Sept. 16, and from that date until the present time Przemyśl has been in the front of important events as much if not more than any other single city.

The first Russian attempt against Przemyśl was undertaken too hastily, or not hastily enough. In any event, however, their big howitzers had not pounded away at the strong fortifications for many days before Austrian reinforcements appeared in great numbers and drove the invaders back.

Early in October, however, the Russian forces, greatly strengthened and dragging heavy guns in their wake, pressed up to the outskirts of the city and again began, this time in deadly earnest, a bombardment of the various forts which formed the great stronghold, Przemyśl.

Austrians Slowly Starved. The attacking army was variously estimated at from 125,000 to 200,000 men. There were probably 150,000 Austrian soldiers within the fortress to defend it.

In a few days the city had been surrounded and entirely cut off from outward communication, and thus it was held and gradually starved until March 22, when General Kusmanek, the Austrian commander, raised the white flag.

Several attempts had been made to relieve the besieged city, but for some reason as yet unexplained the Austrian general staff could not release a force of sufficient strength to drive off the invaders or even to break through the ring of iron.

No sooner had the city fallen and yielded its more than 117,000 Austrian soldiers as prisoners than the Russian armies released from the siege rushed south and east to the various Carpathian passes, bent upon surging across those mountains and into the Hungarian plains. They advanced to the summit of the mountains and held them until the concerted Austrian and German drive, which rolled them back, began last month.

Meantime the Russians were able to restock the forts of Przemyśl to some extent and to repair the damage done by their own guns. But it is supposed that it was lack of ammunition which eventually forced them to retire.

Russians Out Pell Mell.

With the Russians beaten back in the Carpathian fighting General Mackensen at the beginning of May began the drive that sent the Russians reeling back in West Galicia. Two weeks later he arrived before Przemyśl with a great Austro-German army and began the actual siege operations.

Mackensen's left wing crossed the San and menaced Przemyśl from the north. His right wing pressed northward from the south to complete the movement to encircle Przemyśl by seizing the Przemyśl-Lemberg railway.

In front of Przemyśl the famous 42 centimeters began battering at the forts guarding the city from the west. The fortress was not completely surrounded, nor was the railroad seized. The Russians did not stay for that. When they found they could not reply to the terrific hail of steel poured upon them they made the best retreat they could back along the railroad toward Lemberg and on back beyond that city to their own frontier, the Austrians report.

The capture of Przemyśl was one of the great victories of the war. That was achieved by the slow grind of siege, starving out the garrison. The recapture is a no less stirring and important victory. Curiously enough, it was achieved by an exactly opposite process from the capture. The assailants just hurled themselves on the fortress and drove the Russians out practically pell-mell.

Avoid Colds.

If you want to avoid colds in your house, watch for the first sneezes and try to keep the germs from spreading. Make the victim cough or sneeze in his handkerchief, and after the handkerchiefs are soiled put them in a special dish, cover them with water and boil them for fifteen minutes.

ITALIANS FACING STRONGER ARMY

Austria Sends 25,000 Troops to Oppose Invaders.

RESISTANCE IS STIFFENED

King Victor's Armies Are Closing In on Gorz and Severe Fighting Is Taking Place.

Innsbruck, Austria, June 16.—Twenty-five thousand Austro-Hungarian troops left Trent and are now advancing against the Italians on the Riva-Rovereto front.

The Austro-Hungarian troops are employing dynamite in the Alpine passes, blowing up rocks and loosening avalanches on the Bersaglieri. The heights dominating Caporetto on the Isonzo front have been occupied by the invading Italians.

Italians Fear Brigandage.

Rome, June 16.—The Austrian forces, which are offering increasingly strong resistance to the Italian advances in the Isonzo region, are preparing to make a stand, it is understood at Nervesa, only nine miles from Trieste.

Meanwhile Italian armies are closing in on Gorz from three sides and fighting with unexpected success. The fighting along this front is said to be of the severest character. Gorz is now practically isolated. The railways to this fortress, which have not been cut, are dominated by Italian artillery on the surrounding heights, and are consequently of little, if any, use.

The occupation of Cortina, in the upper Cadore Alps, the war office says, has not only barred the way to hostile invasion (evidently expected from this quarter) but has opened the way to an important offensive, probably to be directed across the mountains to Bressanone.

The war office took occasion, in spite of the recent encouraging news to warn the people against too great optimism, explaining that the terrain of operations is almost entirely mountainous and has been prepared and fortified by the Austrians long before hand.

Charges that the Austrian military authorities are fostering brigandage in districts to the rear of the advancing Italian army are contained in an official statement issued at the war office. The communication states that it is the purpose of the Austrians "to check Italian operations, to carry on spying operations and also to lead the Italians to exercise cruel reprisals."

COST OF LIVING JUMPS

Steady Advance Each Year Shown by Federal Statistics.

Washington, June 16.—The cost of living in the United States is higher now than it ever has been before.

This fact is shown in statistics that the United States department of labor has just published.

These statistics show that for 156 articles which are served on the table of the workingman in the United States the average price for the year 1914 was 2 per cent higher than in 1913, and about 5 1/2 per cent higher than in 1912.

In other words, the American workingman is now paying an average price of 102 for what he got in 1913 for 100 per cent and in 1912 for 97.4 per cent.

The statistics show that the cost of living has increased steadily for these fifteen articles since 1907, when the average price was only 81.9. In 1908 it jumped to 84.2; in 1909 to 88.6; in 1910 to 92.9; in 1911 to 91.9 and so on up to 1912, the average price that the American workingman paid in 1914.

The figures show that a sirloin steak whose cost was represented by the figure 91 for 1912 now costs 102.5. A round steak, which cost 89.2 in 1912, had jumped to 105.7 in 1914.

"Drys" Win in Minnesota.

St. Paul, Minn., June 16.—Anti-saloon forces scored additional victories in county option elections in Minnesota when six of the seven counties voting went into the dry column. Seventy saloons in these counties must close permanently in six months.

Trawler Sunk; Seven Lost.

London, June 16.—The steam trawler Arkyl was torpedoed without a warning by a German submarine off Harwich and sank with her captain and six members of the crew. Four of the crew landed safely, bringing the captain's body with them.

SUNDAY AMAZED AT ACKLEY'S CHARGES

Evangelist Says He Dealt Fair With Everybody.

Philadelphia, June 16.—Bentley D. Ackley's sudden resignation from the post of secretary to Billy Sunday and his plan, announced here, to publish sensational information as an exposure of the revival organization, astonished nobody more than Billy Sunday himself.

The news was a shock to the evangelist when he got it over the wire at Hood River, Ore., where he is spending the summer on his apple ranch.

"I have received no other information of these statements," Billy wired in response to a query, "and I cannot believe them true, as I have always dealt fair and square with everybody. Therefore, I have nothing to fear."

The telegram was shown to Ackley at his home, 850 South Fifty-eighth street, where he issued his first announcement. He read it over and handed it back.

"I have the stuff," he said with a grim smile, "and when the time comes you will see. That is all I have to say just at this time. The rest will come soon enough."

The resignation of Ackley and the threat that accompanied it caused a big sensation among the church folk here who had a part in the revival at the big tabernacle at Nineteenth and Vine streets.

A Deathbed Triumph

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

An old man lay on the bed of death. A doctor sat by him intent upon some method of saving his life. An entirely different problem was in the mind of the sufferer.

"Doctor," he said presently, "can't I die for a short time, then come to life again for a certain purpose?"

"What purpose?" asked the doctor. The invalid cast his eyes about the room to see that no one was present, then, stretching forth his hand, drew the doctor to him and whispered what he had to say. When he came to a pause the doctor said:

"I have suspected as much."

"Can it be done?" asked the invalid. "It can be tried."

Some more conversation followed, in which the doctor gave the sick man instructions, and the sick man did the same by the doctor. Then the latter ended the matter by saying:

"Are you ready?"

"Yes."

The doctor took from his medicine case a tablet and placed it in the patient's mouth.

The sick man, who was lying on his back, stared at the ceiling, immovable. The doctor went hurriedly to the door and opened it. There stood the wife of the invalid.

"Madam," said the doctor, "I fear that your husband is dead."

The woman hurried into the room and stood over the sickbed for a few moments looking down into the pale face. The doctor, who was beside her, closed the eyes of her husband, then led her away, saying:

"This has been a long trial to you. Your watch is now over. Go and rest yourself."

She suffered herself to be led away and within an hour was in bed and asleep.

Paul Markham passed away at dawn the next morning. Preparations were made for the funeral, which was held three days later, and on the fourth day his widow, who was his second wife, and her two children by a former husband, all dressed in deep mourning, entered the drawing room of the house in which Mr. Markham had died and took seats. A number of other persons, including a lawyer, entered, and when all were seated the attorney unfolded a document and was about to begin its reading when Dr. Blanchard, who had attended the deceased, entered in company with a girl of fifteen. There was about her a melancholy that savored of despair.

"I have here," said the lawyer, "the last will and testament of Paul Markham, deceased, executed one year ago."

He then read the will, which left all his property to his beloved wife, Jane Markham, trusting that she would sufficiently provide for his daughter, Ethel Markham. Having stated that the will had been duly signed and witnessed, he added that it would be immediately filed for probate. He was refolding the document when Dr. Blanchard arose and, drawing a paper from his pocket, said:

"I have a will executed a few hours before Paul Markham's death."

The widow's countenance changed immediately.

"If you have any such will," she said, "it is a forgery. At any rate it was not witnessed. That I know, because I was in attendance upon my husband every day and hour during his last illness, and I know no one who could have witnessed a will entered the house."

"What time did you go to bed the night your husband died?" asked the doctor.

"At 10 o'clock."

"Your husband did not die till 2 o'clock the next morning."

"He died at 9 o'clock in the evening. You called me into the room where he lay and told me he was dead."

"I told you I feared he was dead. He was very low. He revived, and at midnight I drew this simple will for him, bequeathing all his property to his daughter, Ethel Markham. Two persons came at my call and witnessed the will while you were asleep."

The woman stared at the doctor, although she could hardly believe her senses. For years she had dominated her husband and for a year, since she had forced him to make a will in her favor, had watched him carefully to make sure that he did not make another. At the very end of his life he had outwitted her.

"Let me see it," she said to the doctor.

He held the paper before her. She read it and recognized her husband's signature, though it had been written in the agony of death. Realizing that she had been fooled, she arose from her seat and, followed by her two children, stalked out of the room.

Dr. Blanchard by the terms of the deathbed will was made Ethel's guardian, and she thereafter made her residence with him. Her life had been nearly crushed out of her by her step-mother, and it required some time to restore her to a healthy state of mind and body. But by the time she came of age she was completely recovered, for her surroundings as a member of the doctor's family were all that could be desired, and he knew how to treat her to her advantage professionally. In his old age his savings of years were swept away in a commercial panic, and Ethel Markham provided for him and those of his family who were still too young to take care of themselves.

Homemade Rat Poison.

Farm and Fireside gives the following recipe for homemade rat poison: Barium carbonate is a poison which in small quantities is harmless to the larger domestic animals, but will kill rats and mice. Mix four parts of meal or flour and one part of barium carbonate and place where the rats will find it, or mix ordinary oatmeal to a stiff dough in water, with about one-eighth its bulk of barium carbonate.

Tracing a Thief.

A burglar who broke into an antiquary's shop in Paris was identified by means of a small strip of skin torn from his ear by the broken glass of a showcase. The piece of skin was preserved in a bottle of spirits, and it fitted on to a fresh scar on the man's left ear.

"You are never idle, are you, dear?"

WALKING FOR SPEED.

Arm Action, Body Balance and the Proper Leg and Foot Motion.

In starting on the track the novice should hold himself as erect as possible, without, however, leaning at all backward, the arms at the sides, with the forearms in a horizontal position, at right angles to the part of the arms above the elbows. He should have a feeling of being "well balanced on his pins."

The weight must be kept on the heels—therein lies the chief secret of walking fairly. Speed depends on two factors, the length and the frequency of the stride. Experiments prove that the length of the stride becomes greater as the frequency increases.

Arm action should be carefully cultivated. Properly used, the arms seem to act as levers to lift forward the body, besides helping to balance it. In each stride one foot should be always on the ground and at same moment of the stride some part of both feet should be on the ground simultaneously—that is, the first necessity. Second in importance is to have the walk "heel and toe"—that is, the heel of each foot should strike the ground unmistakably first and the toe of each foot should be the last part to leave it. One should not walk flat footed, with the ball of the foot or any part except the heel striking the ground before the heel does. Lastly, the knee should be "locked" at the end of each stride—the grounded leg should be stiff and taut as the loose leg swings out for the next stride.—Outing.

"Get the Automobile That is Fully Equipped"

Since the Carter Company of Pontiac, Mich., have stopped manufacturing, they leave the LAMBERT CAR, manufactured by the Buckeye Manufacturing Co., of Anderson, Indiana, the pier of the gearless transmission. Lambert was the original inventor of friction gear cars and has brought them to where they are, viz: the most reliable car we have. Practically all cars use friction and why should any one find fault with it?

No car comes equipped like the Lambert in the country. It has 112 inch wheel base and is equipped with

DAYTON AIRLESS TIRES which do away with all tire trouble, Electric Lights, Starter, Horn, Bumper, Pair of Chains, $1000 Fire Insurance Policy, and Automatic Pedals which always leave the brakes on your car as soon as you stop.

This Car $1200 delivered to your nearest R. R. station

The big cut some manufacturers are making means that much cut in quality. Labor and material are both high and are remaining so.

This is the most liberal equipment of any car in the country.

Simeon E. Baldwin Says Insurance Would End Wars.

At the recent conference on international arbitration, held at Lake Mohawk, N. Y., Simeon E. Baldwin, ex-governor of Connecticut, suggested that insurance would end wars. "Insuring nations against pecuniary loss in wars would tend to discourage war for the capitalists, and granting the insurance would then work for peace in the interests of their bank accounts," said Mr. Baldwin.

Ex-Governor Baldwin is famous in New England as a lawyer. He has been chief justice of the supreme court of Connecticut, president of the American Bar association and has written books on law and history. In 1911 he was elected chief executive of Connecticut and on the expiration of his two year term was chosen to succeed himself. He is a Democrat.

The governor's father, Roger Sherman Baldwin, was also a noted lawyer in his day. In 1839 he was the principal attorney in a suit that was celebrated not alone in this country, but in Europe. "Slaves, a ship-load of them, on the way to Cuba, poured out of the hold at a signal, overcame the officers and took possession of the vessel. An American ship, finding them adrift, towed them into the harbor of New York. Spain claimed that the slaves were the property of Spanish planters and speculators. Abolitionists in the north defended the Africans. The case went to the United States supreme court finally and was argued for the black men by Governor Baldwin's father, John Quincy Adams being his assistant. His skill, learning and thoroughness caused the renowned Chancellor Kent to say that he was one of the ablest jurists of his time.

EDEN MUSEE TO VANISH.

Noted Old Waxworks Show Known to Every Visitor to New York.

Another landmark of old New York is about to pass away.

The Eden Musee, in Twenty-third street, where every visitor on his first trip to New York used to be taken to see the wax figures of famous people like generals and admirals, and the "Chamber of Horrors" (oo-oo-oo), where they shivered as they gazed upon the torture apparatus of the Inquisition, and the gigantic gorilla carrying off into the jungle the frail young girl and the hanged man with the genu-wine rope around his neck, has passed into the hands of bankruptcy receivers after an existence of thirty-two years.

The first moving pictures were shown there in 1895, when the "Passion Play" was presented by the film. The first Hungarian band the town ever heard played there as far back as 1885, being brought direct from Budapest. Now, it is said, the movies and the cabarets have killed it.

Crown Prince of Greece.

In the event of Greece taking up arms in the European war Prince George, heir apparent to the throne of the Hellenes, is likely to become a figure of importance. His father, King Constantine, has been reported to be in feeble health, and in the event of the king's death or incapacity Prince George would be either king or regent. The young man was born in July, 1890, and is therefore twenty-five years of age.

PRINCE GEORGE OF GREECE

age. During the Balkan wars a couple of years ago the young prince was an active participant in the fighting.

On his father's side Prince George is of Danish and Russian blood. He was born at Athens, is a member of the Greek national church and is thoroughly Greek at heart, as his father is also. His mother was Princess Sophia of Prussia, sister of the present German Kaiser, so Prince George is a nephew of Emperor William II. Relationship, however, doesn't count for much in European affairs once the sword is drawn, so it is not improbable that the crown prince may eventually find himself opposed to the forces of his imperial uncle.

LADIES! Darken Your Gray Hair
Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and No body will know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy", you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft, and abundant.

People's Drug Store can supply you.

QUEER HAWAIIAN NAMES.

Such as Mrs. Oyster and The Man Who Washes His Dimples.

The natives of Hawaii are singularly picturesque in their choice of names. Mr. Scissors, The Thief, The Ghost, The Fool, The Man Who Washes His Dimples, Mrs. Oyster, The Weary Lizard, The Husband of Kanela (a male dog), The Great Kettle, The First Nose, The Atlantic Ocean, The Stomach, Poor Pussy, Mrs. Turkey, The Tenth Heaven, are all names that have appeared in the city directory.

They are often careless of the gender or appropriateness of the names they take. A householder on Beretania street, Honolulu, is called The Pretty Woman (Wahine Makihi); a male infant was lately christened Mrs. Tompkins; one little girl is named Samson; another, The Man; Susan (Kukona) is a boy; so are Polly Sarah, Jane Peter and Henry Ann. A pretty little maid has been named by her fond parents The Fig Sty (Hale Pua). For some unknown reason—or for no reason at all—one boy is named The Rat Eater (Kamea Oia Oia).

The Rev. Dr. Coan of Hawaii possessed the love of his flock. One morning a child was presented for baptism whose name was given by the parents, Makia; when the ceremony was finished the parents assured the doctor that they had named the baby for him. "But my name is not Michael," said the doctor, supposing Makia to be aimed thereat.

"We always hear your wife call you Mikia," answered the mother. She had mistaken Mrs. Coan's familiar "my dear" for her husband's given name.

An old servant in Dr. Wight's family at Kohala caused her grandchild to be baptised in church. The Doctor (Kauka); that was its only name. By way of compliment to the early physicians, many children were named after their drugs, as Joseph Squills, Miss Rhubarb, The Emetic, The Doctor Who Peeps In at a Door.

Names uncomplimentary, or even disgusting, are willingly borne by their owners; others convey a pleasing and graceful sentiment. Among the latter are the Arch of Heaven (Ka Iia Lanu), The River of Twilight (Ka Wia Lilia), The Delicate Wreath (Ka Lei ma Lili), The name of Lili O Kalani, the queen now in retirement, means A Lily in the Sky.—Youth's Companion.
